

DAILY LEDGER

THIRD YEAR.

MAYSVILLE, KY., MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1894.

ONE CENT.

HERE THERE

OLD COLONEL CAMERA.

What's all this fuss about?

This frantic rushing up and down?

"Oh, haven't you heard the news, my dear?

Everybody is wild with fear.

For old Colonel Camera

Has come to take the town."

Right and left the people were running;

You could hear the fat one pant and strive;

And a bride and groom were shouting madly,

"Well, never, never be taken alive!"

But when the saw how his was taken,

She sat her down, and she wept and mourned.

The valiant few who remained behind,

As a matter of course were taken first;

Don't try to hide, or to run, or fight,

And the non-committal, who looked on coldly

As they deserved, were taken worst.

Not one escaped from the doughty Colonel

He nobody spared, or great or small,

Thair aght and struggit were worse than useless.

For at last they were taken, one and all.

So, at last, you should meet this conquering hero,

But assume your very best expression.

Aid put yourself in a pleasing light.

A CLOSE SHAVE.

A brakeman came very near being killed Saturday.

Dick Merile, a brakeman on local freights

No. 64 and 65, C. & O. Railroad, was very badly hurt Saturday about noon at Ball's, a siding used by the quarries

below Columbia, while en route to Cincinnati.

The crew was engaged in what is known as "kicking" a flatcar on the sidetrack, and Merile was on the car to set the brake when it had gone far enough.

A small rock was on the rail, and the car, running onto it, was thrown from the track.

In the jolt Merile lost his hold and fell against the hill, rolling back under the side of the car, and one of the Journal boys caught him and rolled him over,

breaking his arm in two places and considerably bruising him up all over the body.

He was taken to California, where medical attention was given, after which he was brought to this city and removed to his residence on East Fifth street.

We believe this was the closest shave

we ever heard of a man not being killed.

While the car was passing Merile it cut the boom out of his shirt and his necktie off, not even as much scratching his person in that particular place.

He is resting easy this morning, and unless hurt inwardly will be in a few days.

He was one of the best natured fellows you'd meet in a long walk, and his many friends will be sorry to hear of the accident.

and prominent planters near Northport,

with paralysis. His condition is hopeless.

Jeff D. Walton and Miss Dorla Walter,

both of Fleming county, were married

this morning at J. M. Redden's on East

Second street, Rev. E. B. Calk officiating.

The Montgomery county Republicans have nominated Hon. Ed. C. Oresar for County Judge, G. L. Kirkpatrick for

Clerk, and Wallace McMaham for Constable in the Mt. Sterling Precinct.

Sunday's Commercial Gazette contained an up-country special, garished all over with blood, thunder and sensation.

The facts were published in The Ledger

the previous Tuesday.

Claudius Clary, aged 36, and Miss

Delia Sullivan, aged 30, both of the

At 5 o'clock the fire was beyond the control of the central fire companies and a general alarm was sounded.

About 15 minutes after the general alarm was sounded, and while a score of firemen, mostly from the Eagle Hose Co., were fighting the flames from the rear of the building, a portion of the roof gave way. Three firemen were killed and three others injured. The falling debris, while the others near the break in the roof got away safely. THE CZAR WILL.

Death Will Soon Lay Claim to the Russian Ruler.

His Heir, Nicholas, is But Twenty-Six and Unmarried.

Alexander III Has Been Dead Eleven Years on the Russian Throne. His Heir Will Die Young and the Present Dynasty Will Then End.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—Confirmed announcement that the czar is suffering with a complication of diseases which must prove fatal at a day not far off, according to medical opinion, is necessarily the paramount political topic of the week. Alexander III has not comported his health since he was eleven years on the throne. His heir, Nicholas, is 26 and unmarried. He is betrothed to Princess Alix, of Hesse, but the match is known to be distasteful to him and not over agreeable to her, involving as it does, abandonment of her Protestant faith for that of the Greek church. The marriage is set for next January, but it is freely asserted, especially since the news of the czar's illness, that during the summer, that the wedding will never take place.

He is declared to be opposed to matrimony, a fact which, if believed, will portend by violence while young and that the dynasty will go out with this generation. His father's condition even if the emperor shall survive until the new year, will make marriage at the time appointed impossible. There is little probability that Alexander III will live so long as that, and predictions are rife that his days are numbered by weeks only.

An dramatic instance affecting directly and collaterally almost every reigning house in Europe and involving issues that, since the days of Peter, have absorbed European statesmen, are necessarily to be affected by the death of the emperor, the topic engenders all classes of people and puts into insouciance for the time being all other subjects, domestic and foreign. Of course, ill-fated prophets eagerly foresee and ardently foretell immediate and universal revolt of the people of Russia after the emperor's death; extinction of constitution of the empire; or the formation of a federal republic with a restricted central government. These fears take little account of the fact that the czar's death will exercise formidable influence upon the future of Russia. As well talk of revolution in China.

China could afford to let rebellion cut off several empires, and still the central government would be one of the strongest in the world. The Taiping insurrection went on nearly twenty years, and destroyed as many millions of Chinese, but if several American and one English shierie had not interfered and suppressed the insurgents, it might be going on still without material injury to the reigning house.

The empire of Russia is double in extent to that of China, and while its millions are only one-third as many, another class of facts exist in Russia rendering established government even stronger than that of China. Russia is one of the most densely organized military powers on the globe.

Russia has been engaged for nearly three hundred years in preparation to prevent domestic rebellion. Her army and navy alone could be relied upon to put down any uprising and scarcely miss a man or rebel a gun. The land and sea forces have no other motive for living.

The Monk!

By MATTHEW G. LEWIS.
NEW LEWIS.

Mr. Lewis was a member of the British Parliament, and his book became so popular in England that he had to leave his seat in the hundred years ago that it gained for him the title of "Monk Lewis."

It is a fine piece of classic composition, and after being out of print for many years it has been republished from the original text.

Grounds consist of fourteen acres, affording ample space for tennis court and other outdoor amusements; commanding location on a hill overlooking the beautiful little city of Richmond, within a few minutes walk of the business portion, thus combining the advantages of a city with the retirement of a country seat. Mrs. Bourne and Miss Lloyd will be supported by an able corps of teachers, graduates of our best colleges and universities. Music lessons complete, of acknowledged ability. Board department limited to thirty boarders, thus affording opportunity for social intercourse between faculty and students in sitting-room and parlors, impossible in large boarding schools.  MISS A. K. BOURNE
 MISS ALICE LLOYD.

TESTIMONIALS.

It gives me pleasure to say that I am well acquainted with the character and work of Mrs. A. K. Bourne and Miss Alice Lloyd, and that I think the Madison Female Institute very fortunate in securing their services in its management. They are both ladies of culture, executive ability and of skill in the art of teaching. No parent in Kentucky or elsewhere need hesitate to place daughters under their care or instruction.

THOMAS W. MEANS'S FORTUNE.

Suit Against the Estate Now On Trial at Louisville.

The suit of H. B. Cowan and others against the Means estate is on trial before Judge Barr at Louisville.

The points raised in this case have been published heretofore in THE LEADER.

It is a suit over the will of Thomas W. Means of Ashland, who was one of the wealthiest men in Eastern Kentucky, and has been in the courts for several years.

William Means, a son, was executor of the Metropolitan National Bank in Cincinnati, about the failure of which in 1888 so much was written.

John Means, a brother of William Means, advanced a sum, said to have been about $800,000, to save his brother from a criminal prosecution.

This was before the death of the father, Thomas W. Means.

Now the fight hinges chiefly on whether William Means is to be charged with the amount advanced by John Means, who was managing the estate of Thomas W. Means.

The suit belonged properly to the Covington dock and before Judge Taft, but Judge Barr consented to sit in the case.

The counsel appearing for the plaintiffs are ex-Congressman John Little of Hamilton, O., J. G. Gidden, Cincinnati, and Judge H. P. Whitaker of Covington, Ky.

For defendants—United States Solicitor General L. Maxwell, Jr., Washington, and John F. Hager of Ashland, and William Anderson, Ironton, O.

All six will speak, and Judge Barr decided to allow each side six hours for argument.
